Forward:

Rae and Todd Andreacchio, to investigate and research the "suicide" case of their son Christian Andreacchio, contacted our team. Upon receiving various reports and evidence of the case, as well as investigating the scene of the incident our selves, we decided to move forward with criminal investigation. Finding multiple inconsistencies and changing stories lead us to believe that Christian did not commit suicide or at least that the stories given to police by the individuals on scene were inconsistent with physical evidence.

Objective:

The Andreacchio family is seeking closure and justice for the death of their son Christian.

- Our team established a factual timeline of events leading up to the death of Christian and events shortly after.
- Investigated leads and witnesses while discrediting any hearsay or non-factual stories.
- Tracked and obtained phone activity of all involved parties and people of interest. Phone numbers, messages and communications between Christian and known associates.
- Employed resources and credible connections to help gather and validate evidence.
- Gathered and studied physical and electronic evidence from crime scene
- Established undeniable facts that conflict with statements given to the police
- Examined the actual police audio of the 911 dispatch call from Dylan.
- Examined actual police CAD footage and other public records.
- Examined both the Coroner's report and Medical Examiners reports.
- Re-created scenarios of the event to disprove the statements given to the police by Dylan and Whitley.
- Worked with blood spatter, homicide, and forensic specialists to get a professional opinion of what happened at the crime scene.
- Questioned primary suspects in interviews and polygraph.

Police Involvement:

In order to aid/supplement the Police investigation we have made arrangements to share any and all updates in intel and evidence.

Facts changing the dynamics of the case:

- Due to the positioning of the body, abrasions on Christian's face and nose, blood spatter, position of the firearm and other physical observations of the crime scene we established that the body had been moved/repositioned post-mortem.
- Christian's blood toxicity and autopsy showed no signs of chemical or drug use during the time of his death.
- Gun shot residue was found on all three members of the scene. The strange part about the gun residue was the fact that Whitley and Dylan both had more GSR on them than Christian did. Both Whitley and Christian denied being in the bathroom, touching the gun, and moving Christian.
- It was obvious that the bathroom had been cleaned prior to the Police arriving. There was a large amount of evidence suggesting that a party or parties had been going on in the apartment while Josh and Christian were out of town at work. Josh and Christian were both very clean and orderly; both always cleaned their rooms prior to leaving for work. When police arrived there were beer bottles, cigarette butts, dog feces, whiskey bottles and other signs of partying. The entire apartment was trashed both upstairs and down. Strange was the fact that the upstairs bathroom (the scene of the event) had obviously been cleaned and was by far the cleanest room in the apartment. For an apartment with a single full bath and only a second half bath, the bathroom should have been the dirtiest room in the house with constant use of drinkers during all the previous partying that week.

Odd facts about the investigation:

- The firearm used in the shooting was a 1911 model pistol (Kimber Raptor 1911 chambered in .45acp). The pistol was a single action only, semi-automatic handgun. With a full magazine, after firing the first round, the hammer should have been in the "cocked" position with another live round loaded and in the chamber (one shot fired, another loads and is ready to fire again.) When the pistol was found, the hammer was down in the safe position. This could only be performed manually by a second person.
- Christian was a dominantly right-handed shooter. He was right handed in writing and other activities. The 1911 model pistol is designed for a right-handed shooter. The bullet entered the skull of Christian from the right side and exiting the left. When police discovered the body, the pistol was found on his left side and was wedged neatly between his body and the tub. This is highly unlikely and improbable considering most suicides end with the firearm flying away from the body due to recoil. The pistol was placed in its final location by another person.

- After discussing the crime scene with several veteran experts, it was determined that the position of the body was not consistent with the evidence or the statements given by the witnesses. In order for the chain of events to happen the way that Dylan and Whitley said, Christian should have been resting on the toilet or in the floor.
- Christian, the family and others knew Whitley was stealing money from both Josh and Christian. She had been wiring herself money using Western Union out of Christian's checking account. Whitley had also spent the bill and rent money left with her by Josh (Christian's brother and roommate.)
- Whitley thought she was the primary beneficiary for a life insurance policy on Christian for a large sum of money (motive,), which she was not.
- Christian had already caught Whitley cheating on him before and knew she had been communicating with other men while he was away at work.
- Whitley fabricated a story about why Christian had left the boat to come home. She told responding officers that he had "messed up" at work and spilled some oil or chemicals and that he was going to be fired. This had no truth and was a pure tale.
- Dylan said to his grandfather " I think she is going to pin this on me."
- In a statement to a Private Investigator, Whitley stated that she had called her mother from Christian's phone. 601-604-4836 was the number of the mother, no such calls were made according to Christian's phone records.
- The upstairs bathroom had been cleaned and staged to look like a suicide. We entertained the idea that a 3rd witness might be possible given that a certain person was called 6 times at the time of the shooting.

Questions yet answered:

- At the time of death (Christian being already dead) his cell phone made a call 6 times to the number 601-917-7313. No one answered these calls but that number returned the call an hour later. If Christian was dead, Whitley was asleep and Dylan was gone at BestBuy then who was making the calls?
- How did a right handed shooter, shoot himself in the head and then transition the pistol to his left hand?
- Where is the missing bottle of Josh's Ambien from his closet?
- Who took the bug-out box that was supposedly in Christian's Jeep (known to contain about $7500 in cash and a 9mm or .40sw pistol)? This was not confirmed. No cameras were active at the site where Christian's jeep was parked.

- Whitley stated that she had "been shooting the day before," with who and where did this target shooting occur? This turned out to be with Matt Miller and his cousin Jett Miller. Both will testify that she did not fire a weapon. She was present while the others shot. Also GSR only exists for a short period of time (hours) on ones body or skin, not days.
- It would make sense that due to the size of Christian vs. the size of Whitley and Dylan that help would be needed to move the body?
- There was very little blood anywhere in the bathroom other than directly in the tub. This would further support the "cleaning theory."
- Who can identify why Christian would have had abrasions on his face and nose prior to the shooting?
- Mr. Sims identified a Gold, extended cab, pick-up truck with load pipes at the apartment at 1600hrs. This would put someone there directly after the time of death. Could this be someone there to help?
- Was Whitley in the bathroom at the time of the shooting?
- Did Dylan or someone else go to Vicksburg, MS and visit Christian's Jeep to retrieve the money and gun? If there was in fact money and a gun.
- Was Dylan trying to buy time with a bogus address during the initial 911 call? Why did he give the wrong address?
- Who was calling the phone in the background of the 911 calls? Was that another person or was that Whitley's second phone?
- Dylan was having relations with Kimberly "Meme" who is engaged to another man Houston. Meme is Whitley's Aunt and works at Alliance. Could she be the source of the prescription pills?
